The local community’s Relay For Life goal was surpassed by more than $13,000 May 13.

Shaw members teamed up with the Sumter community to raise more than $70,000 to fight cancer during the Relay For Life in Sumter.

“Relay For Life is a celebration for cancer survivors,” said Elaine Hood, Relay For Life event chairwoman.

Miss Hood has been participating in the relay for six years and said this year’s event included five teams from Shaw.

Teams are signed up to literally walk all night in support of those who have both won and lost the battle against cancer.

Maj. Gettys Harris, U.S. Central Command Air Forces weather plans chief, said his team, 28th Operational Weather Squadron, raised more than $4,800. Originally, the 28th OWS’ goal was to reach $2,500, but it was quickly surpassed, said the major.

“Many of us know of someone who has had cancer, and we often feel helpless. This is a chance for us to do something,” he said.

“We had several fundraisers from carwashes to garage sales to raise money. Each individual (who participated) was able to raise at least $100,” said Maj. Harris. “The money went to the Relay For Life campaign.”

Maj. Harris would like to see one improvement, however.

“If every squadron had a team, we would raise a lot of money to fight cancer,” he said.

Relay For Life fundraising will continue until August. Members who would like to contribute can visit www.acsevents.org.

Team Shaw members can also drop off donations by contacting Miss Hood at 895-6064.
